

Irish History Students' Association

Podcast

CALL FOR PROPOSALS

The Irish History Students' Association is pleased to announce the Call for Proposals for its fourth podcast series. The Irish History Students' Association is the national organisation for third level history students in Ireland. Organised on an all-island basis, it has been promoting the study of history since the organisation's establishment in 1950. Its podcast, which was established in 2023, seeks to showcase new historical research from students of all levels of history, researching any historical period or theme.

Students of history at all levels in Ireland, along with those researching Irish history abroad, are invited to submit an expression of interest to ihsapodcast@gmail.com by Friday 22 May 2026. In addition to your name and institutional affiliation (if any), the email should contain a brief synopsis of your research interests and proposed topic of discussion for the podcast episode (max. 100 words).

Recordings will take place online throughout the summer and will be made freely available to listen to on Spotify and other streaming platforms. Episodes from the previous series can be found here.